

To whomsoever it may concern

Mr. Rohaan Bhojwani: Reference letter based on internship at EY India during July 2021

I am pleased to write this letter for Mr. Rohaan Bhojwani, who interned with us virtually with our Mumbai office - during the summer of 2021. As the Chief Policy Advisor for Ernst & Young India, I supervised Rohaan's 3-week internship and shared an excellent rapport with this bright young man.

Rohaam is well-versed with current global trends, a function of his inclination for financial markets combined with his academic and research assignments in business and economics. He was able to seamlessly transition into the internship role and responsibilities.

In his tenure with us, Rohaan gained a deeper understanding of the various sectors of the Indian economy, as well as macroeconomic principles of GDP, GNI, GDP, etc. He went on to analyze the impact and response of different sectors in the Indian Economy to the ongoing pandemic. Focusing on current trends across various sectors has enabled Rohaan to gain a macro-view of key business principles and also assimilate the opportunity cost across different sectors. With his fundamental understanding of economics and strong grasp of business, he also studied the implementation of Macro-fiscal policy.

Rohaam is an excellent writer, able to present his ideas in a cohesive manner and create for the reader an intelligent informative piece of writing. In his tenure with us, we focused particularly on developing his skill on writing economic articles.

Rohaam was comfortable working with members across the team. He is quick-witted, collaborative and punctual. We enjoyed having him on board and I am certain he himself gained immensely from the professional environment at EY.

I am pleased to note that Mr. Rohaan Bhojwani is applying to your institution. Young minds like Rohaan will thrive and flourish, as they challenge themselves to do more and make a compelling case by exceeding all expectations. We wish Rohaan success in his academic endeavors.

Sincerely

Dr. DK Srivastava

Chief Policy Advisor, EY India, Macro-fiscal Unit, Tax and Economic Policy Team